

BRUCE CAMPBELL

Broker

Bruce began his career as an engineer after getting his degree from Virginia Tech University. After working in the field for several years he went back to school and earned an MBA from Duke University with a concentration in Finance. Bruce then went to work for Hewlett-Packard where he started as a financial analyst before taking on several other roles which gave him additional experience in sales and marketing. While doing some personal real estate investing, Bruce caught the real estate bug and decided to work in the field full time in 2008.

Identifying and understanding a client's needs and goals is one of Bruce's greatest strengths. After thoroughly understanding the client's situation, Bruce utilizes his diverse background in order to best serve his clients.
